

FARMERS REFUSE TO HEAR STATE MEN AT MEETING

Officials Refused Permission To Address Gathering Held At East Berlin.

While officials of the state department of agriculture sat by in enforced silence, having been refused permission to address the gathering, a meeting of York county farmers in the Emigsville area was held in the P. O. S. of A. hall, East Berlin, Tuesday evening for the purpose of bringing them into the Farmers' protective association of Pennsylvania, which, among other things, is strenuously opposing tuberculin testing of cows.

Four hundred persons, not all of them farmers and some of them women, attended the meeting, plans for which were made by W. J. Watts, field organizer for the association, who presided.

State Officials Balked

As every speaker concluded lengthy arguments why the farmers should join the protective association and oppose to the limit efforts to have their cattle tuberculin tested, the several state officials, who have been testing cows in York county over the protests of a minority group in Hopewell township, asked to address the gathering, but permission was refused persistently.

"This is a meeting for farmers," the state officials were told. Among the representatives of the state department at the meeting were Dr. T. E. Munce, head of the livestock sanitary board of Pennsylvania; Doctor Turner, Doctor Clarkson and others. George Weber, York county farm agent, also was present, but did not speak.

Organization was not effected at the East Berlin meeting, and Mr. Watts announced that another meeting for that purpose would be held this evening at Emigsville at 8 o'clock.

Bootlegging Milk

The first speaker was John Shenk, vice president of the Lancaster county unit. He said: "I feel like a scared man. A stranger in a strange land. I'm an ordinary dirt farmer. I am a firm believer that every man has a right to do his own thinking. The issue is that they want to push the area test on the farmer. I am here to tell

ASSEMBLY OPENS IN CHAPEL TODAY

Two Hundred Are Expected To Be Enrolled In 21st Annual Lutheran Assembly.

Two hundred persons, ministers and laymen, men and women, are expected to be enrolled for the twenty-first annual Lutheran summer assembly, which opens this evening at 6 o'clock in the chapel at the Lutheran theological seminary here.

The Rev. Dr. S. Winfield Herman, Harrisburg, president of the assembly, will formally open the sessions which will be concluded next Wednesday.

After the opening, the Rev. Dr. A. E. Bell, of Toledo, Ohio, will give a Bible talk, to be followed at 7:30 o'clock by a reception in the chapel.

20 Teachers and Lecturers

Twenty teachers and lecturers have been secured for the sessions which will be held morning, afternoon and evening at the seminary.

Thursday evening, Dr. R. M. Dunkelberger, Gettysburg, will give an address on India, where he spent many years as a missionary, and on Friday evening, the Rev. Dr. Motern will give an illustrated lecture on Martin Luther.

A group of nine young people are expected from Taneytown. They represent the Sunday School of Trinity Lutheran church, the Rev. W. V. Garrett, pastor, and Carroll C. Hess, superintendent. Misses Elizabeth Wilt, Leah Reindollar, John Bricker, Jack Bower and Cash Smith will go from the leadership training class. Miss Clara Dev'lbiss, Miss Hazel Hess and Miss Treva Becker will go as teachers of the school and Miss Eliza Senft will go as a representative of the Mite society.

This is the largest delegation to come here from the Taneytown church since the summer assembly was instituted some years ago.

NEW BOOK FROM LATE THEOLOGIAN

Posthumous Writings of Late Dr. J. A. Singmaster Receives Favorable Church Comment.

A posthumous book from the pen of Dr. J. A. Singmaster, president of the Lutheran theological seminary for many years, has come from the press of the United Lutheran Church Publishing house, Philadelphia, and is being favorably commented upon by ministers and laymen here.

The work, entitled "A Handbook of Christian Theology," was about completed when Doctor Singmaster was fatally stricken, late in February, 1926. His death occurred at his home on Seminary avenue, February 27, 1926.

After Doctor Singmaster's death, Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Levars, his daughter, completed the manuscript from data her father had prepared. The book was proof-read by Dr. H. C. Alleman, member of the seminary faculty.

The book represents the gist of lectures on Christian Theology which Doctor Singmaster gave in his teaching career of a quarter of a century at the seminary, and is described as "simple and direct in style, appealing equally to laymen and clergymen."

Besides the lectures, the book contains a biographical sketch of the author's life.

Conduct Tour of County Orchards

To show fruit growers of Adams county what has been done toward control of scab and codling moth in orchards here, a demonstration tour will be held next Monday afternoon, R. E. Underwood, county farm agent, announced today.

The tour will start at the orchard of John Peters, Gardners, at 1 o'clock, and the tourists will visit the Robert Eldon orchard, Aspers, at 2 o'clock, and the Glenn Slaybaugh orchard on the C. H. Musselman farm, Arendtsville, at 4 o'clock.

Dr. E. L. Nixon and Dr. H. E. Hodgkiss, of State College, will accompany the local tourists, explaining the simplicity of control of fruit blights.

AGED MAN KILLED BY FALL OF ROCK

Former Fairfield Resident Killed In Quarry; Funeral Services Are Held Today.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at Cavetown, Maryland, for J. Edward Miller, 60, formerly of Fairfield, who was killed Monday morning at the Bushey quarries, Cavetown, in a fall of rock. Interment was in the Fairfield cemetery.

Mr. Miller was using a crowbar and was up a distance of about 40 feet, when an accumulation of rocks at the point where he was working rolled down, carrying Mr. Miller along.

He suffered a fractured skull and broken leg.

Frank Bushey, of the firm of G. M. Bushey and Son, which firm operates the quarries and business at Cavetown, stated that in the 44 years in which the firm has been in existence, this was the first fatal accident at the quarries.

Mr. Miller is survived by his widow; son, Charles, Hagerstown; daughters, Mrs. Lucy Leatherman, Myersville; Mrs. Charles Wishard and Mrs. Ray Cline, both of Cavetown, and Mrs. Harry Clark, Hagerstown; and brothers, Thomas and Samuel, Cavetown, and Daniel, Baker, West Virginia.

Dr. C. H. Heldt In New Quarters On Chambersburg St.

Dr. C. H. Heldt, osteopathic physician, will remove his offices from 53 Chambersburg street to the second floor of the Lippy building, two doors above his present location. Larger and more commodious offices are required by Doctor Heldt in his practice, which accounts for his removal.

Doctor Heldt has been located in his present quarters for five and one-half years, ever since his arrival here upon completing his course at the Kirksville School of Osteopathy, Missouri.

Benefit Fair for Littlestown Team

The Littlestown team of the Adams County Baseball league will hold a fair on the playground at Littlestown, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, August 11, 12 and 13. The proceeds of the fair will be used to pay the expenses of running the baseball team.

Washington, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A night of speculation left Washington's political heads still muddled today over President Coolidge's terse announcement that he did not "choose" to run for president in 1928.

Instead of clarifying the situation as the time approaches for active campaigning to get under way for the 1928 National Convention, the action of Mr. Coolidge brought a vast outpouring of opinions which illustrated the uncertainty in the minds of both friends and opponents of the administration.

A majority of these opinions was informal because there was a great reluctance on the part of politicians to commit themselves on the question which was on every lip:

"Will the president run if he is nominated?"

Senator Smoot, Utah, an administration stalwart, thought he would.

Others said he was definitely out of the race.

Still others said the issue had been put up to the Republican party with the president now in a position to await developments.

The thought which was persistently expressed in the capital was concerned with the course now to be taken by friends of the president who have insisted that he would be nominated whether or not he chose to serve for another term. Persons wise in the ways of politics do not expect the answer to this question to be immediately apparent.

The gossip here long has been persistent that with Mr. Coolidge eliminated Secretary Hoover might feel himself free to get into the race along with Vice President Dawes, Frank O. Lowden, Speaker Longworth, Senator Borah and the others who have been classed as eligibles.

Undertaker Is Married Within State Monument

As an undertaker at Bruin, near Pittsburgh, John W. Knox knows something about monuments, which may have accounted for his desire to be married on one.

Whether his proclivity for monuments was the motive or whether it was because his father was a veteran of the Civil War and had his name inscribed with other Pennsylvania fighters on the imposing state monument here, Mr. Knox and Miss Ivy M. McAllister, of Pittsburgh, were married in the rotunda of the Pennsylvania monument on the battlefield here at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The Rev. Earl J. Bowman, pastor of St. James Lutheran church, performed the ceremony. They were attended by two of Mr. Knox's sisters and their families. A tour of the battlefield followed.

GETTYSBURG IS LAUDED BY MOORE

President of Capitol Tours Declares Battlefield Town Is Highspot on Highway.

The International Motorcade from Atlanta to Quebec over the Appalachian Scenic Highway in September presents the greatest publicity opportunities that this section has been offered according to A. T. Moore, president of the Capitol Tour.

"Publicity will be produced by the entertainment the motorcade receives at each town and stopping point and such publicity will go a great way to establish the Appalachian Scenic Highway, in whole or in part, as the best and most popular route from north to south and vice versa," declared Mr. Moore while in Gettysburg Monday.

"I believe these tourists are looking forward to their visit to Gettysburg with almost as much anticipation as to their visit to Canada and I am pleased with the tentative plans that are being made for their reception here. It is particularly significant that such a reception should take place at Gettysburg for not only is it of deep interest to Southerners but it is the first official point they reach in the north and this is the proper place for welcoming them to this part of the country."

Mr. Moore after greeting the motorcade in Staunton will accompany it to Canada. He explained that Canada is fully aware of the publicity and goodwill value of this tour and is making

THREE NABBED BY POLICE ON THEFT CHARGE

Fourth Is Being Sought; Two Enter Confessions; Summer Cottages Robbed.

With three men under arrest and a fourth being sought, state and county police today expressed the opinion that another wave of petty thievery in Adams county has been stemmed at the outset.

The trio under arrest, charged with breaking, entering and larceny, are Dale Taylor, 23, Aspers; McKinley Showers 26, Arendtsville, and Oliver Kauffman, about 45, Hamiltonban township.

State police hold a warrant for James Becraft, Almondale, Maryland, son-in-law of Kauffman, and implicated with the latter in the alleged theft of a quantity of household furnishings from a cottage of two Chambersburg families at Caledonia.

Two Have Confessed

Taylor and Showers have confessed, state police said, to the theft of five tires and some automobile tools from the garages of Earl Dunlap and Reuben Showers, Menallen township, during the night of July 28.

The tires and tools were recovered by state police and Detective Wilson when they arrested the pair Tuesday afternoon. Additional tires reported to have been stolen from the garage of Martin Baugher, Menallen township, were not recovered.

Property Is Recovered

Most of the property stolen from the cottage at Caledonia, owned by residents of Chambersburg, was recovered by state police and Constable George Aughinbaugh at the Kauffman home. The police were armed with a warrant for the son-in-law's arrest, but failing to find Becraft they arrested Kauffman and brought him to jail here.

Late Tuesday, Kauffman furnished $500 bail for his release for a preliminary hearing, the date of which has not yet been set.

Showers waived a preliminary hearing, furnishing $500 bond for his appearance at the August term of court. Taylor was still in jail today.

COW TESTING IS SAID FAVORABLE

Report of First Month's Activities in Adams County Given By Tester.

A report of the first month's work of J. H. Phillipoy, tester for the Adams county cow testing association, given at a meeting of the directors in the office of R. E. Underwood, farm agent, Tuesday evening, was described as being "highly favorable." The cow tester began his duties July 1.

Mr. Phillipoy reported testing 214 cows on 26 farms in the county during the month. Thirty-four of the animals produced more than 1,000 pounds of milk for the month.

The directors expressed themselves as well pleased with the results of the first month's activity, and urged all members of the association to attend the Cumberland county dairy show at Mt. Holly Springs, August 10 and 11, to study with the farmers of Cumberland county the proper type of dairy cattle and participate in the educational demonstrations arranged for that time.

Results Given

The owners of the ten cows in the association, which produced over 40 pounds of fat during the month of July, the number of pounds of milk and fat each produced follow:

Roy A. Weaver, Gettysburg, Holstein, 1497 pounds of milk, 70.36 pounds of fat; Roy Bream, Fairfield, Jersey, 945 and 48.50; R. M. Spangler, Gettysburg, Holstein, 1736 and 46.87; R. M. Spangler, Gettysburg, Holstein, 1504 and 45.12; R. M. Spangler, Gettysburg, Holstein, 1445 and 41.91; J. Ellis Bream, Gettysburg, Hereford, 806 and 43.52; Elmer Bubb, East Berlin, Holstein, 1317 and 43.46; Earl Cashman, New Oxford, Holstein, 1345 and 43.04; Edgar Weaver, Gettysburg, Holstein, 1190 and 41.80, and S. J. Glatfelter, East Berlin, Holstein, 846 and 40.46.

Harry Brown, Fairfield, president of the association, presided at the meeting, which was attended by R. M. Spangler, Gettysburg; Earl Cashman, New Oxford; A. B. C. Williams, York Springs, and Charles Hartman, Biglerville.

Says "M. H. J." in his column, "Call It A Day":

"Lincoln's office boy is dead, at 82. He joins the huge throng consisting of Lincoln's orderly, Lincoln's bodyguard, Lincoln's palbearers, and the theatergoer who caught Lincoln before he fell. The number of these is almost as great as the number of veterans who were 'first over the wall at Chapultepec,' or 'first over the wall at Peking.'"

Why he should overlook the engineer who drove Lincoln's train to Gettysburg when he made his memorable address in the dedication of the National cemetery November 19, 1863, is beyond our scope of comprehension.

"If I had an appropriation for only one kind of advertising I would use local newspapers," Leroy A. Mershon, of New York City, manager of the trust company division of the American Bankers' Association, said in a recent address before a conference of the trust company section of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association.

"Newspapers are the best advertising medium in the world," Mershon declared. "They reach the masses as well as the masses. If only one type of advertising is to be used, local newspapers are the logical and best selection."

BEAN BEETLE IS FOUND IN STATE

Control Measures Are Recommended by Agricultural Department; Spreading East.

The Mexican bean beetle, a pest of garden and field beans, is spreading eastward through southern Pennsylvania, according to the State Department of Agriculture.

This pest from the southwest was first discovered in Pennsylvania in 1924. The first brood of the insect did heavy damage to garden beans this season in parts of Greene, Washington, Fayette, Beaver, Allegheny and Westmoreland counties. A second generation will appear about the second week of August and will probably damage late beans, entomologists state. The beetle has been found as far east as Harrisburg.

The adult of this beetle is a light brown. Each wing is usually marked with eight small black spots which results in the bean beetle being confused with the squash lady beetle. The markings on the latter, however, are much larger and less numerous.

Control Measures
The following control measures are recommended in Bulletin 447, just issued by the State Department of Agriculture at Harrisburg:

"For sprays use magnesium arsenate 2 pounds to 100 gallons of water; or 1½ pounds of calcium arsenate and 3 pounds of lime to 100 gallons of water.

"For dusts use magnesium arsenate 1 pound and hydrated lime 5 pounds; or calcium arsenate 1 pound and hydrated lime 9 pounds.

"Direct all sprays and dusts toward the under side of the bean foliage.

"In infested areas the young bean plants should be sprayed or dusted as soon as the first leaves are unfolded. The application should be repeated at intervals of ten days or two weeks, keeping the foliage well covered until the pest is brought under control.

"Green beans intended for food, gathered from sprayed or dusted plants, should be washed sufficiently to remove all spray residue; usually two thorough rinsings in clear water should be enough.

"Much can be done in the control by cleaning the fields of crop remnants. These should be plowed under as soon as the beans are harvested. Waste places near fields should be burned over to destroy hibernating beetles."

FARMERS REFUSE

you that it is a privilege of each farmer, providing he decides to have the testing done. This area test is the most obnoxious attempt to cripple the farmers ever heard of. Is there any man who can tell me it is any good? It made trouble everywhere. At one time there was nothing but T. B. tested milk could come to Lancaster. Finally raw milk could come in, but could not be peddled on the streets. I now know of several milk bootleggers. There is as much bootleg milk as whiskey in Lancaster. Twenty-five or thirty years ago, labor didn't amount to anything; now it is a prominent factor. United we stand, divided we fall. We are organizing the county units, one by one. At his conclusion he was afforded liberal applause.

Chester County Man Talks

Joseph Cope, president of the Chester county unit, was the next speaker. He referred to the test in Bradford county, one of the cleaner counties. He said, "Dr. Underhill, present trustee of Central City hospital, in Philadelphia, who owns a farm in that county, was one of the chief objectors. He also is a valuable assistant in organizing the farmers. I do not feel unfriendly to any man in this audience. I have the kindest feeling for the state men, even of our opinions differ. When they get tired of testing cattle, they will want to test your chickens, your hogs and sheep."

Edwin P. Miller, president of the Delaware county unit, was the next speaker. He said: "When the 'T. B.' test first started it was purely voluntary. It is now compulsory. The farmers were forced into the test. Professor Koch, the discoverer, made no claims for it, what they are doing today. The high priced cattle dealers are using the tuberculin test for a good advertising slogan."

There were present at the meeting, association members from Lancaster, Chester, Delaware and York counties.

Use Pine Seedlings To Make "Home Brew"

Harrisburg, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A new use for pine seedlings, the manufacture of home brew, was reported today by John W. Kellar, chief of the extension bureau of the state department of Forests and Waters.

While making inspection of private tree planting in Somerset county he visited the property of a coal company expecting to find a thriving young plantation. Instead he discovered a barren hillside. Inquiry developed that Mexican miners had carried them away and used them in making beer.

New Windows Received By Emmitsburg Church

Emmitsburg, Aug. 3.—The new art glass windows recently placed in the Church of the Incarnation, here, were formally received by the congregation at a special service held Sunday. The windows are a gift to the congregation by a friend in memory of Elders James Motter and Murray Galt Motter.

The service was a memorial to these men, both of whom were children of this congregation, and very prominent in the affairs of the church at large. The pastor, the Rev. F. L. Higbee, was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Allaman, of Gettysburg, an intimate friend of the donor and those memorialized.

elaborate preparations for the welcome and entertainment of the visitors.

"However, it will not be alone in Canada that these tourists will be elaborately entertained. All along the line they will be greeted with official welcomes and decorated towns, testimonial luncheons and dinners.

"The Pennsylvania members of the tour are using excellent judgment in forming a state committee and making the entertainment of a state-wide nature thus avoiding duplication and a waste of valuable time. It will require considerable organized efforts and functioning to show all Pennsylvania has to offer in the too short a time that the motorcade will be within the bounds of the state.

Fine Publicity Channels

"You, of course, are aware of the publicity channels that are open to news created by or because of the motorcade. These are almost unparalleled and it is readily discernible that the reception that is to be tendered at Gettysburg will command wide publicity and will be of real news value because of Gettysburg's significance as a historical shrine and its being practically the entry into the north from the south and to the south from the north.

"Gettysburg is without question one of the highspots on the Appalachian Scenic Highway."

Stock Market Jolted By Coolidge Decision

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—An avalanche of selling orders inspired by President Coolidge's unexpected announcement that he did not choose to be a candidate in 1928 gave the stock market a terrific jolt at the opening today when prices crashed three to 16 points, but a subsequent recovery wiped out many of the early losses and sent about a dozen issues to record high levels. Trading was on an enormous scale. Wall street undoubtedly was stunned by the president's decision. It caught the market in a vulnerable position with railroads and industrial stock averages at a new peak after 20 consecutive days of rising prices.

QUITS HILLS IN SEPTEMBER

Rapid City, A. D., Aug. 3.—(AP)—It was stated definitely at the summer white house that the President and Mrs. Coolidge expect to leave the Black Hills the first part of September. Meanwhile they have no plans to visit either Yellowstone National Park or the Coolidge homestead in Vermont.

WANTS NAVAL AGREEMENT

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 3.—President Coolidge has instructed the American delegation at the naval armament conference to make every effort to reach an agreement but failing in this he expects the meeting to adjourn sine die.

WANT CURFEW SILENCED

Duncannon, Aug. 3.—(AP)—More than 100 residents of the borough have petitioned the council to eliminate the nightly blast of the curfew whistle. Some time ago council had the whistle toned down as it was loud enough to be heard three miles.

LEGION MEN GATHER

York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—With the arrival in York of Adjutant James J. Deighan and his staff of clerks, the stage is set for the opening tomorrow of the annual American Legion convention. An influx of delegates started today and by noon tomorrow at least 1,000 will be here.

MAY FIGHT SEPTEMBER 15

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight match at Chicago may be staged September 15, after all, as originally planned, instead of September 22, promoter Tex Rickard said today on his return from Chicago.

PETERS FAMILY REUNION

EMMITSBURG TIED FOR LEAGUE LEAD

Defeats Brunswick on Saturday In Eleven Inning Tilt; Hopes To Cop Pennant.

Emmitsburg, August 3.—By defeating Brunswick Saturday in a thrilling eleven inning battle, by a score of 3 to 2, Emmitsburg is now tied for first place in the Frederick County League race with Brunswick. The game was played at Brunswick and when the report of the game reached here about 6:20 Saturday evening there was great rejoicing and the fans were out in force planning a reception for the boys on their return to town. That a winning team is a great asset to a town was clearly demonstrated here Saturday evening. Even with the rain the streets and business places were crowded and the general topic of conversation was the chances of Emmitsburg winning the pennant this year.

Arthur Slaybaugh, Stewart Sites and Jim Swope, of Fairfield, played heavy roles in the Emmitsburg victory. Slaybaugh was on the mound for the first seven innings and although Brunswick connected with his offerings for 11 bingles, the Fairfield lad kept the hits so well scattered that the Railroaders were only able to scamper over the home plate for two tallies. Jim Swope gave the Emmitsburg followers who attended the game a real thrill when his long stick connected with one of Huffer's benders driving out one of the longest hits ever seen on the Brunswick field, Jim circling the bases for a home run. Stewart Sites connected for two hits.

Paul Orrison led with the bat having four hits to his credit. J. Brooke Boyle for Emmitsburg chalked up three hits one of them being for two bases.

It was one of the best games ever staged in the county league and the local fans are much encouraged and are keyed up to celebrate the winning of the pennant here this year. Mt. Airy will play here on Saturday.

Irish Hearts

By MOLLIE MALONE

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Emmett Murtough, a wild youth of Killamau, a village on the west coast of Ireland, goes to America and sends word back to Sheila Kildare that he has a fine job. Sheila's father, Old Tom, sells his farm and with Sheila sails for New York. Emmett meets them and takes them to the flat he has rented for them. Murtough boasts that he has a fine job with the City in the street cleaning department.

CHAPTER IV

In the Shadows of Hell's Kitchen Two generations have passed since Hell's Kitchen, that district lying in the vicinity of Tenth Avenue and the upper Porties and Fifties, roared its defiance at police and organized law and order. There were men, then, tough, hard fighting brutes, but withal possessing a sense of chivalry and fair play. They were not the skulking bandits of today, excited by cocaine, and shooting to kill, no matter how insignificant their venture. Hell's Kitchen was settled by Irish immigrants and if they used their fists and sometimes wrestled the baton of a bluecoat and beat him over the head with his own weapon, still and all, there was no murder in their hearts, rather of love of fight and frolic, which is the heritage of every son of old Erin. The character and personality of the district has changed. A polyglot population inhabits it now. Traces there are of the imprint of its Irish settlers, but these human landmarks are old and their children have passed on to live in fancier sections of Greater New York. The O'Sheas had remained.

"It's a no good trade," Kathie would complain to her husband.

Mike O'Shea had been a hod carrier when he landed, a greenhorn, thirty-odd years ago. He learned to lay brick and there was no better workman nor had there been a steadier husband and father than he. Eleven children had blessed his match with Kathie, his wife, and contentment had settled upon the old pair. All of the children were alive and well and were successful in marriage or in their trades and there were grandchildren, too, who brightened the Sunday afternoons of Mike and Kathie. Old Mike had a few dollars in the bank, savings from his long years of labor, and the children, God bless them, weren't they sending in regular the fewer dollars that were needed for the old couple's wants? The flat in the old tenement where they had lived for twenty years, was still comfortable for Kathie was a fine housekeeper and knew how to take care of their possessions, and now a radio had taken the place of the phonograph of ten years before. Why should they be moving, old Kathie would tell her children: "It's the years that make a home homelike and new things are not for the old." Rory O'Shea was the unmarried son who had remained at home. He was a gay lad and a courageous lad, now twenty-eight, and the idol of old Mike and Kathie, although they scolded him daily and professed never to have been content with the profession he had followed. Rory was a prizefighter.

"It's a no good trade," Kathie would complain to her husband, "what with him coming home with his face knocked up and his eyes black like he'd been to the fair at Knockbotherum!" "Let him be, let him be, he's clean an' honest an' 'tis no disgrace to be a prizefighter, if a man wins," the old man would answer, for his heart expanded with pride when his neighbors congratulated him on Rory's battles. But congratulations were fewer today. Matches were rare; now and then some candidate for the lightweight championship would take on Rory, but Rory knew he was being used as a set-up, he knew that his punch was passing, that he couldn't stand up to those boys of twenty-two and twenty-three. Some of them he pitied, for he saw them as the same victims of greedy mismanagement just as he had been. Why, when he started out didn't he fight as many three "prelimes" a week, and for what? For a twenty dollar bill out of the fifty that the manager took down for the match. Eager to go, inexperienced, courageous as a bulldog, he had fought when and wherever he was carded, believing and trusting the manager who told him that the championship was just around the corner and that ring experience and ring generalship would win it; he had only to fight to be a fighter. And it was this willingness that had broken down the fine strength of the boy; today he lacked the muscle and brawn to back up his gameness and his experience.

But the fans liked him. The patrons of every club in New York City knew him and his courage and his willingness to carry the fight to his opponent. Six months before he had fought at the Palladium. He got a bigger hand than the favorite, a lad who was up and coming. "Good old Rory!" "Here's a fight!" "It's no set-up with Rory O'Shea!" The loyalty of his following warmed his heart, but he knew after feeling out his man in the first sixty seconds that young Zillinsky was his master. But he had put up a fight and had the galleries roaring when he stood toe to toe and exchanged rights and lefts that rocked him sadly. It was not until the seventh round that his strength gave way, and even then he fought doggedly, hiding behind no clinches and dancing footwork, but carrying the fight to Zillinsky, who, realizing that Rory was weakening, waited calmly for the opening that sent the O'Shea to the canvas for the count.

The O'Sheas occupied the first floor of the tenement where Sheila and Old Tom Kildare now lived. As Sheila became accustomed to her new surroundings and went marketing in the neighborhood she would frequently see old Kathie sitting by the window, prim in her black dress and beautiful in her white hair with brown eyes and the cheeks that still held a bit of the pink of Irish youth. They came to smile at one another, for Kathie recognized at once that Sheila was a greenhorn and fresh from the old country. Soon they met upon the stoop and from the exchange of greetings concerning the weather they came to discuss the best places to buy and Kathie herself guided Sheila through Paddy's Market beneath the "L" on Ninth avenue, south of Forty-second street. Every Saturday the curbs of Paddy's Market are lined with carts and the very freshest vegetables and fruits are to be had at the most reasonable prices in Manhattan.

Imagine, then, the delight of these two when Kathie told of her home which lay on the other side of Knockbotherum away from Killamau. And she had been even to Killamau years before, driving there with her father in the dog cart. Sheila revived the past to Kathie, and, "Did she know" this family and that family? And some the old lady remembered and some were lost in the vagueness of the years that had gone since she and her bridegroom, Michael O'Shea, had sailed for America. Sheila was elated. Here was a friend indeed. The squalid district became brighter as old Mrs. O'Shea recounted the beginnings of her life in America and contrasted the poverty they had endured and pointed with pride to her possessions now, times when Sheila lived in for a cup of tea. True, Sheila missed with all her heart the fresh air of Killamau Hills; even the dank fog that swept up from the sea wooed her with its remembered pungent, salty flavor in the hours when homesickness was upon her. But she was braver and Emmett had taken her for walks about the city and into Central Park, and there she spent many afternoons, sometimes taking Mrs. O'Shea with her, but just as contented to be alone and to dream.

Emmett still boasted of what he was going to do. Sheila shrewdly suspected that these boasts were but the veil behind which he hid his discontent. She came to realize that his job with the city was a menial one, for had she not seen the trucks that gathered the waste and ashes at their business in front of her own flat? He still talked of marriage, but the day he would name became farther and farther away. Sheila had put a prompt stop to any love making. "When ye have made good, as ye say, an' ye come to me, I'll tell ye my answer, Emmett, an' no sooner." Discontent began to rest upon the head of Old Tom. For three months now he had been waiting like Micawber for something to turn up and to put him in the way of the dreamed of career in politics.

Friends you can trust

ADVERTISED products are your friends wherever you find them. You know them. And you can buy them with confidence—sure of honest value for your money. For they have stood the test of public scrutiny, they have been advertised and found worthy.

For advertising, after all, is a test—a trial by the fire of public approval. Today no manufacturer would start advertising his products unless he knew they were sound and good. And if errors did creep in, he would be quick to correct them, for to hold business he must uphold the confidence advertising has created among millions of people for his wares.

Advertising brings protection to the consumer. It guarantees honest value. It sends quality up. The manufacturer who advertises builds up such a volume of sales that he gives far more in both quality and quantity than the non-advertiser can possibly do.

Seek out your friends—the advertised products. Favor the dealer who handles them. Look for them on the shelves. Watch for them in the show windows. They are the hallmarks of a good business house. They are negotiable guarantees of value. They are friends you can trust.

Advertised products are sometimes not the cheapest you can buy; but; they are always the cheapest to own

The following ladies and gentlemen will compose the various committees: Committee of Arrangements.—T. J. Crotty, William F. Codori, H. Gintling, Frank Wisotzkey and F. I. Smith.

Committee of Dinner and Supper.—Mrs. D. Twomey, Mrs. H. T. Cunningham, Mrs. A. Becker, George Slonaker, George Smith, A. Redding and Pius Althoff.

Assistants Table No. 1.—Misses Annie Smith, Alice Beard, Emma Hoffman, Stella Redding, Lottie Sanders and Mary Arendt.

Table No. 2.—Mrs. Catherine Wasssem, Miss Emily Brinkerhoff, Rose Stock, Minnie Gintling, Gertie Stock and Martha McCleary.

Committee of Refreshments.—E. P. Wisotzkey, P. A. Miller, William F. Codori, Joseph Carver and George Stock.

Committee of Amusements.—F. I. Sfrith, J. Frommeyer, Ed. Redding, Ed. Althoff, Charles Redding and William King.

Fish Pond.—Misses Lizzie Carver, Fannie Eckenrode, Anna McSherry, Annie Codori, Annie Wisotzkey, Dora Stock and Fannie Althoff.

Cake Stand.—Misses Ella Carver, Alice Martin and Miza Wasssem.

Baseball.—The game of ball last Saturday between the Gettysburg Athletic club and the strong Emmitsburg team resulted in a victory for our boys by the score of 5-1. The game was a good one, our boys acquitting themselves well. Lower, our pitcher, struck out 11 men. Rowe pitched for Emmitsburg and did good work, but his support was poor. Adams, Stock and Sieber put up an excellent game. J. A. Holtzworth umpired the game very satisfactorily.

Looks Like Business.—We are reliably informed that contracts are being made for ties and lumber to be used in the construction of the Washington, Westminster and Gettysburg new steam road.

Five hundred laborers have been engaged, it is said, and will be put to work in the near future, grading the road.

Change at W. M. Station.—Owing to ill health, W. H. H. Wisotzkey, who for a number of years has been the accommodating agent at the W. M. R. R. station, this place, has asked for an indefinite leave and has been granted the same by the company. Charles W. Myers, who has been the very efficient operator for a long time, has been appointed agent in Mr. Wisotzkey's place, and Clarence Wilson has been given the position of operator.

Personal Mention.—Miss Carrie Hamilton, of this place, is spending some time with friends at Seven Stars. Charles E. Stahl, editor of the Compiler, is sojourning at Atlantic City.

Miss Pauline Mitten is spending some time with Atlantic City friends.

Misses Lula and Lillie Chritzman are spending some time with Westminster friends.

Miss Mary Sheads is attending the Summit Grove camp meeting.

Miss May Bruner is visiting friends at Columbia.

Samuel Faber was a York visitor during the past few days. He attended the Democratic convention.

Councilman Charles A. Beck and wife are at Atlantic City for ten days.

Miss Margie Trostle is spending a week at Emmitsburg, Maryland.

Miss Mary J. Ramer is visiting Miss Miller at Harrisburg.

Mrs. J. A. Smiley and daughter, Miss Georgie O., spent Sunday at Glen Rock.

H. T. Weaver, wife and children left yesterday on a ten days' outing at Darlington, Maryland.

Howard Hake, who graduated from Dickinson college in June, has accepted a position as teacher in a preparatory school at Nashville, Tennessee.

Mrs. S. G. Spangler and Miss Minnie Spangler are spending some time at Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

Dr. T. T. Tate and wife leave today for a two weeks' trip to the mountains.

Mrs. G. E. Spangler and son, Paul, are in Hanover for a few days.

Fairfield.—Abraham Kime, an aged veteran of the Civil War, left last week for the Soldiers' Home at Erie.

Daniel Sanders has returned from a visit to his sons and daughters in Illinois.

Peter Stover and family moved to West Virginia last week.

Rev. E. R. Laughlin is off on a month's vacation.

Among the visitors we notice the following: G. W. Baumgardner, Mrs. Harry Baumgardner, of Taneytown, Maryland; Miss Lula Watson, of McConnellstown; Misses Maggie and Bessie Peters, of Baltimore; William Riley and wife, of Philadelphia; Mrs. John Moore and children and Mrs. Cal. Moore, of Biglerville; Lewis Gaylor and wife, of Mapleville.

Arendtsville.—Dr. Robert Eicholtz, of Syracuse, New York, is among visitors here.

Miss Rose E. Swope, of Greenville, Georgia, and Miss Mary and Hilda Lockard, of Altoona, are visitors here.

Rev. Emory Stockliger and wife are visitors at the home of Rev. D. T. Koser.

Dr. Leroy Merriam has a cucumber that measures 1 3/4 inches long and weighs 2 1/2 pounds.

JANET

When Janet was born,
She was tiny and frail,
And the doctor that morn,
Rather troubled and pale,
Told her mother and me,
As he bent to appraise her:
"She's as cute as can be
But I don't think you'll raise her."

When Janet was one
She was tiny, but still
She'd already begun
Demonstrating her will
And her mother once said,
Or several times maybe,
As she put her to bed:
"She's too wise for a baby!"

When Janet was three
She was sturdy and stout
And she domineered me
Until I was worn out.
To share in her play
Was my duty on Sundays,
Which I did, and I'll say
I was no good on Mondays.

And now she is five
And despite all we say
Somehow she'll contrive
Still to have her own way.
And the mother says now
When that roguish tyke bad is:
"She's stubborn, I vow!
But that's just how her dad is!"

MUMMASBURG

Mummasburg.—Mrs. Samuel Shue was a week-end visitor in Chambersburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Topper and daughter, Idella, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Topper and daughter, Janet, spent Sunday at the home of Walter Topper and family, Spring Grove.

Sunday visitors at the home of Robert Harmon and family were: Bernadetta Topper, Carl Hoke and Gregory Topper, of Hanover; Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCadden and daughters, Myrtle and Hazel, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Trimmer, Anna Topper, Myles Deardorff, William and George Taylor.

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Topper were: Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Topper, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Topper and daughter, Janet, Mr. and Mrs. John Allison and three daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eckert and grandson, Curtis Eckert, near Table Rock, were Sunday visitors at the home of William Allison and family.

Sunday visitors at the home of Charles Fritz and family were: Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thomas and seven children, of Beecherville; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hankey and four children and George Harbaugh, of Gettysburg.

Mrs. James Topper fell on the cement walk at her home while going to the pump to get a drink of water last Friday and injured her right foot near the ankle. Home remedies were applied and a doctor was not called until Sunday. The injured ankle was so swollen then that the physician was unable to tell whether or not any bones were broken. Mrs. Topper is confined to her home.

Mrs. Sarah Seest, of Clear Spring, Maryland, is spending some time at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Guy Hartman, and family. Sunday visitors at the same place were: Myrtle Seest and brother, Frank, of Clear Spring.

Why Should Not the Spirit of Mortal
Be Proud?

This dear little child is trying to remember whether it was in Grandfather's slipper or in Aunt Mary's sewing bag that she left her live turtle this morning—but no matter. Any one who wears such an appealingly pretty frock can surely induce the little boy next door to give her another turtle. Made in pink cotton broadcloth (the frock and bloomers, we mean) the smart scalloped cuffs, collar and pocket-top are of the same material in white bound with rose-colored bias tape. How prettily the soft fullness through the body is gathered into the yoke that forms the sleeves as well! A dotted Swiss version of this style, with apple-green bindings to match the dots, is most summery and bewitching. (Copyright, 1927, by B&B)

As the little rabbit hopped into the farmyard, all agog with curiosity as to the big eggs which Henny Jenny was hatching, whom should he see fishing in a mud puddle but Ducky Waddles. You see, it had rained hard during the night, and the water from the old barn roof had made quite a pond in a hollow place.

"Hey, there, Ducky Waddles," cried the little rabbit. "Have you caught any fish?"

"I'm not fishing," answered Ducky Waddles. "When I go fishing I visit the Old Duck Pond."

"Well, then, what are you doing?" asked the curious little bunny.

"Oh, just feeling around in the mud with my bill," quacked the happy little duck.

"What for?" asked the bunny.

"Food," answered Ducky Waddles. "I get most of my food under water in the mud. That's why I have such a wonderful bill."

"It's just the same as Cocky Doodles, only wider and flatter," cried the bunny boy.

"No, it isn't just the same,—not by a jugful," retorted the little duck. "Just look inside my bill."

"Goodness me, you have teeth," exclaimed the little rabbit.

"No, I haven't. Those pointed things all in a row around the edge are not teeth. They are strainers!"

"Well, I never," gasped the little bunny. "I surely thought they were teeth."

"No indeed, they are not teeth," went on Ducky Waddles. "I use them for finding my food. I'll explain," as the puzzled little rabbit wrinkled his forehead. "I thrust my bill down and bring it up full of mud. Now, mixed with the mud are things which I live on. The nerves in my bill tell me what is good, and I let all the rest go out between the little pointed things which you thought were teeth."

"Gracious me, how wonderful," cried the bunny boy.

"I can't see what I get under water in the mud. I must work altogether by feeling, and the nerves in my bill do this very nicely for me. They tell me what is good for food, and the rest I let slip out. Yes, I strain the mud for what is good to eat," concluded Ducky Waddles.

Just then, who should come out of the Henhouse but Henny Jenny. But, goodness me! She seemed to have lost all her gay spirits and stuck up her feathers in a bristling way, clucking all the while as if she were angry at everybody and everything.

"I don't know what's the matter with Henny Jenny," sighed Cocky Doodle. "I've almost decided to send for Dr. Quack, the famous duck doctor, who lives by Lily Pond Lake."

"Stuff and nonsense. Don't you know what's the matter with her? She wants to set,—that's all. You just let her set. A fiddlestick for Dr. Quack."

All of a sudden sounded a familiar voice, and there on the Henhouse roof sat Professor Jim Crow, his Wisdom Book under his wing and a big pair of spectacles on his beak.

The next minute back to her nest bustled Henny Jenny, every pretty feather seeming to stand out straight, very much like the hairs on the back of Old Sic'em on seeing a tramp.

"Dear me," sighed the little rabbit. "I meant to ask her why she is sitting on such big eggs."

United States
Roads

By Du Bois Young
President
Hupp Motor Car Corporation

FEDERAL aid to the States in the building of good roads will be continued this year. The allotment of money will probably be about $75,000,000, the same as in the last fiscal year. The money allotted in any one year is carried over into the next in the event it has not all been spent during that year.

During the last fiscal year the Federal road projects completed contributed a net addition of 9,417.3 miles to the mileage of improved roads in the Federal aid highway system.

The United States Bureau of Public Roads has completed a map of the United States on which is shown the final location of the United States system of highways, consisting of approximately 80,000 miles of the most important roads in the country. This system embraces ten main transcontinental routes designated by numbers, each of which is a multiple of 10. The important north and south routes are numbered 1, 11, 21, 31, etc. The plan contemplates that these important through routes shall have many variants and cross-overs to other routes which will reach practically every large city and serve every section of the country. In its final form the system has the approval of each of the State Highway Departments and work on the unimproved sections is to be pushed in the states rapidly.

A main system of highways for the nation is the underlying idea of the scheme. The unimproved sections at present are to be given priority in improvements, and marking and safety signs are to be placed on these sections as soon as possible.

PUBLIC SALE

—OF A—
MOST PRODUCTIVE FARM
ON SATURDAY, 6TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1927.

The undersigned administrator with the will annexed of Isaac E. Routzahn, deceased, under powers in will, will sell at public sale on the premises a valuable farm, considered one of the most productive farms in the county, situate in the township of Tyrone, county of Adams, on the road leading from Centre Mills to Route-bush's Mill, containing ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-FIVE ACRES, more or less, improved with a two-story frame dwelling house, big barn, with two big sheds; two corn cribs; old blacksmith shop and other necessary buildings. There is a good well of water at the house and a running stream on the farm. The farm has been noted for the good crops raised by the late Isaac Routzahn.

There is standing on the farm one of the finest tracts of timberland in the county, containing about SIXTY ACRES; large solid timber, white oak, rock oak, hard wood, some poplar. It is convenient to the railroad at Guernsey and Aspers, from 1 1/2 to two miles distant. This wonderful piece of timberland should be seen before the sale. Few like it in the county.

The place will be offered in several ways. The timber with right to cut and remove by April 1, 1929; the farm without the timber and farm and timber together.

—ALSO—

At the same place and time will be sold the stock and farming implements of decedent:

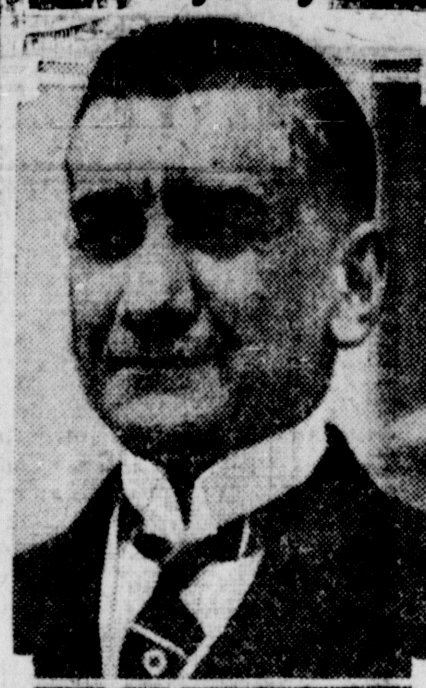

ONE HORSE; gas engine and saw, wheelbarrow; feed mill; binder; cultivator; double plow; harrow; buggy; 4-inch tread wagon; peg harrow; corn sheller; mower; wagon; harrow; wind mill; wagon bed and hay ladder; roller; gears harness; blacksmith shop tools and appliances and many other articles.

Sale to begin at one o'clock sharp, when and where attendance will be given and terms made known by GETTYSBURG NATIONAL BANK.

Administrator with will annexed of Isaac E. Routzahn, dec'd, by E. M. Bender, Trust Officer.

Wm. Arch. McClean, Esq.,
Attorney for the Estate.

Mystery

Mystery surrounds the shooting of Senor Don Francisco La-tour, Minister to the United States from Guatemala. While some circumstances indicated a suicide attempt, friends insisted his self-inflicted bullet was the result of an accident.

Are You Working for Your Furnace?
Or Is Your Furnace Working for You?

Do you faithfully journey down to the cellar every cold morning to start the fire, shovel coal several times a day and bank the fire again at night? Do you religiously carry out the cinders and fill your lungs with soot and dust? If you do—you're doing a janitor's work and not getting paid for it.

ROUND OAK
SUMMERHEAT

Automatic Fuel Oil Burner

Relieves you of all this work. Just set the room thermostat at the temperature you desire, and you are assured of a steady, constant supply of heat. Thermostatic control starts, stops, and controls the burner. The action is entirely automatic—it is superhuman in its efficient, economical operation. Summerheat may be attached to any furnace without removing a single grate or bricking in the foundation. It operates through the feed door, leaving the furnace intact. Coal, wood, or garbage may be burned at any time if desired, giving the Summerheat a big advantage over the ordinary oil burner. Summerheat is made by a concern that for 54 years has manufactured only the finest types of heating equipment. The name Round Oak is your guarantee of dependable heating service at low cost. It will pay you to investigate this remarkable burner and to see it in operation. Ask for the free description circular.

FREE DEMONSTRATION

Let us give you a free demonstration in your own furnace and see for yourself how this ROUND OAK OIL BURNER will perform. Phone or see us today and ask us to give you a demonstration. It is not necessary to take out any grates, build up with bricks—just place the oil blaze where your coal blaze performs.

SECURITY

PORTLAND CEMENT

It's our old friend—and yours, too!

Whenever you see a building job in this part of the country you'll probably find them using Security Portland Cement. For twenty years Security has been the first choice because of its high quality and the integrity of its makers.

Today all the same reasons exist for Security's first choice. It is still made in the same plant, near at hand, at Security, Md., by the same men working in the same earnest way.

The next time you need cement, follow the choice of your neighbors as proved by years of experience and come to us for our old friend, Security.

NAVY REGAINS OIL LANDS FROM DOHENY. SINCLAIR

Six years after being turned over to the Interior Department as a result of the influence of Secretary Albert B. Fall, and subsequently leased to Doheny and Sinclair interests, the Navy Department is regaining possession of the naval oil reserves. The lands affected included the famed Teapot Dome and Elk Hills reserves, the allegedly illegal transfers of which precipitated the Doheny-Fall-Sinclair scandals. August 1 is the date of the formal transfer. Photos show (top) derricks in the Elks Hills, Cal., field; and (below) the Teapot Dome field in Wyoming. Inset is a view of the rock from which the latter gets its name.

Europe Repairing Highways

By DuBois Young
President
Hupp Motor Car Corporation

IN America the automobile has provided the reason why this country has the most ambitious road-building program of any nation in the world and why we will have in the United States the finest system of highways to be found anywhere. In Europe, especially on the Continent, where there are highways which are as many as 2,000 years old, military preparedness has been the principal stimulus to highway construction.

In Europe it is almost impossible to separate road building and armies. To begin with, armies built roads and these same roads were used by the armies in getting from one part of the country to the other. Roads were built from the centers of population to frontiers largely for military reasons.

With the World War and the re-making of the map of Europe there came a consequent interruption of national road-building programs. But today the countries of Europe are repairing highways. In the last two years Germany alone spent $125,000,000 on road repair.

More and more Americans are taking their motor cars to Europe to tour England and the countries of the Continent. The battle areas of France and Belgium are attracting more tourists every year. And the American, whether in England or picturesque Holland with its tree-lined highways, in France or Germany, will find good roads. And after all, is there any better way to see a country well than by automobile?

AMUSEMENTS

"The Better 'Ole," the Warner Bros. production, will be shown at the Majestic Theatre, tonight and Thursday.

"The Better 'Ole" has about everything that belongs to a perfect picture. The characters are all real and intensely vital persons, especially Old Bill, the lovable British civilian in uniform, who, as played by Syd Chaplin, becomes as memorable a character as ever trod in the path of a picture camera. The story, with its background of the war, is engrossing and full of suspense that rises to a smashing climax. The direction, credited to Charles F. Reisner, is magnificent. It has tremendous pace and swiftness, its detail is finely accurate, the camera work is of rare beauty and originality, and the whole atmosphere breathes of the war villages of France.

But the genius of the picture lies in its laughter. It is the laughter that was stirred out of the anguish of the war; the hilarity of the British army that was captured by Captain Bruce Bairnsfather, when he drew the cartoons that later were to become famous in The London By-stander. These cartoons helped to make Old Bill as well known a war figure as Foch, Haig or Pershing. Old Bill touched the heart and made the world ring with laughter.

In his later incarnations Old Bill appeared as the hero of the play that Bairnsfather and Arthur Eliot constructed out of the cartoons, and "The Better 'Ole" made stage history.
